GENERAL INDEX.

VOL. XVIII. NEW SERIES.

Abercromby, hon. Jas., Hope's letter to, 182; see Hope.

Abuse of the press, remarks on, 170.

Academies, theological, importance of, 548.

Advice to the young mother, 90 et seq.; danger of domestic tampering with medicine, 90; exceptionable tendency of author's advice in this respect, 91; remarks on croup, ib.; measles, 92; exercise, ib.; domestic medicines, ib.; antimony, 93.

Aikin's court of James I., 97 et seq.; utility of works of this description, 97; advantages and disadvantages of the subject, 98; character of the reign of James, ib.; his favoritism and dissimulation as king of Scotland, 99; key to his conduct towards the catholics, ib.; his inconsistency, 100; murder of the Earl of Murray, ib.; Gowry conspiracy, 101; proficiency of the king in the art of government at his accession to the throne of England, ib.; his portrait, 102; his first acts as king of England, 103; entertained by Oliver Cromwell, ib.; his conduct in summoning his first parliament, 104; violent and unconstitutional speech, ib.; Hampton court conference, 105; sir J. Harrington's description of the conference, ib.; points insisted on by the Puritans, ib.; translation of the Bible suggested by their spokesman, ib.; design of James in the conference, 106; account of his first favourite, Philip Herbert, ib.; description of an entertainment given at Theobalds to the king of Denmark, ib.; origin of Robert Carr's promotion, 108; portrait of Carr, ib.; remarks on the death of Prince Henry, 109; indecent conduct of the court on that occasion, 110; character of the prince, 111; fall of Somerset, ib.; conduct and secret intentions of James towards him, 112; publication of the book of sports, ib.; jealousy of Sunday manifested by the abettors of church authority, 113; irreverent and irreligious conduct of the king, ib.; murder of Raleigh, ib.; synod of Dort, 114; policy of James in that affair, ib.; calvinistic character of the English church at this period, ib.; rise of Laud, 115; his baseness towards Abbot, ib.; attachment of James to Abbot, ib.; declining power of the king, ib.; ascendancy and insolent conduct of Buckingham, 116; ominous caution given by James to his son and Buckingham, ib.; disgraceful conduct of Prince Charles, 117; death of James, ib.; estimate of his character, ib.; merits of the publication, 118, &c.

Allen, W., remarks of on the carnal and spiritual states of man, 426.

America, remarks on, 465; see Europe by an American, Howison, and Pradt.

INDEX.

Antinomianism, the crime of every age, 231; a source of schism, 331; the residuum of an evangelical creed, 498.

Armenians, present condition of, 343.

Artemi, memoirs of, 343 et seq.; depressed condition of the Armenians, 343; birth and early hardships of Artemi, ib.; Armenian Friar Tuck, 344; venomous reptile at Erizan, 345; legend of Artar the hermit, ib.; Armenian nuptials, 346: exorcism made sure, 347; account of the Jasites, ib.; Turkish justice, 348; Artemi's proficiency as a thief, 349; sack of Tiflis, 350; Zar Heraklios, ib.: sequel of Artemi's adventures, ib.; translator's postscript to the memoir, 351.

Balbec, description of, 315.

Barton's letter to a junior member of the society of friends, 423 et seq.; 'Christmas carol,' 432; extracts from the letter, 438, 9; author's claims to the support of the body, 440; see Quaker orthodoxy.

——— Napoleon and other poems, 155 et seq.; author's explanation of the object of the poem, 155; objections to the statements of the 'peace society,' ib.; religious wars and private resistance indefensible, 157; reflections on the death of Napoleon, 158; address to the sun, ib.; the pool of Bethesda, 161; satisfactory character of the author's religious sentiments, 163.

——— verses on the death of Shelley, 476 et seq.; literary character of P. B. Shelley, 476; reflections on his death, 477; absurd eulogy on Shelley by Arthur Brooke, 478.

Beacon newspaper, infamous character of, 172.

Bible, on the unrestricted circulation of, 404, 5; history of the translation of, 321, 397, 403.

Biblical literature, illustrations of, 385 et seq.; see Hamilton, Horne, and Townley.

Blackwood's Magazine, infamous character of, 172.

Bonaparte, Grattan's speech on war with, 15; a Cyrus to the church, 137; description of in exile, 142; stanzas on the death of, 158; merits as a legislator, 253; conduct towards the Swiss, 281; character of, 341; see Barton, Pradt, and O'Meara.

Book of Psalms in verse, 187; version of psalm xxiii. ib.

Boswell, sir A., remarks on the death of, 179.

Brand, rev. T., memoirs of, 283; his unwearied assiduity in catechising, ib.

Burckhardt, character of, 195.

——— travels in Syria, 39 et seq.; contents of the work and remaining MSS. 39; occasion of Mr. B.'s travels in Asia, 40; Mr. W. Bankes, ib.; service rendered by Burckhardt to sacred geography, 41; reason for supposing that the Jordan formerly discharged itself into the Red Sea, ib.; elucidation of the route of the Israelites through the wilderness, ib.; author's equipment in setting out for the Haouran, 44; Ezra, population of, ib.; substantial architecture of the houses, 45; description of the Ledja, ib.; account of the Ismayiy and Anzeyry sects, 47; description, population, &c. of Tripoli, 49; account of the Emir Beshir, ib.; political condition of the anti-Libanus and adjacent region, 50; religion, customs, &c. of the Druses, ib. et seq.; Djerash, supposed to be Geraza, 52; population of the Haouran, 53; characteristic hospitality of the people, ib.; description of Tiberias, 54; account of the convent of Mount Sinai, 55; merits and characteristic qualities of Mr. Burckhardt, 59.

Burke, character of the eloquence of, 5, 249.

Butler's reminiscences, 239 et seq.; literary character of the author, 239; character of Lord Mansfield, ib.; contrasted with that drawn by Junius, 242; character of Lord Hardwicke, ib.; Lord Camden, 243; Lord Rosslyn, ib.; character of Sir W. Grant, ib.; Lord Eldon, 244; character of Lord Chatham, ib.; anecdote of the same, 246; peculiarity and astonishing effect of Lord Chatham's oratory, ib.; eloquence of Whitfield of an analogous character, 247; requisites for oratory, ib.; singular parliamentary powers of Lord Londonderry, 248; Castlereagh and Chatham contrasted, ib.; Lord North, ib.; Fox, Pitt, and Burke, 249; Pitt and Fox both unacquainted with political economy, 250; character of Sheridan as an orator, 251; estimate of Grattan, ib.; Sir Philip Francis and Junius, 252; extraordinary character of Mr. Fearn, ib.; eulogy on the Code Civil of Napoleon, 253; comparative merits of French and English poetry, ib.; French and English fine writers, 254; panegyric on Bossuet, 255; Robert Hall compared with Bossuet, 256; pulpit eloquence discountenanced and counteracted in the Protestant Establishment, ib.; pulpit orators of other denominations, 257; author's suggestion of a work on the grand Manichean conspiracy, 258; all orthodox Christians equally liable to the charge of Manichean notions respecting the Devil, ib.; remark of Leibnitz, ib.; intolerance inseparable from the Romish creed, 259.

INDEX.

Byron, lord, not possessed of the dramatic faculty, 275, 408.

Cabrera's research into the history of the Americans, 523; see Rio.

Canada, sketches of, 352 et seq.; see Howison.

Carey's Dryden's Virgil, 475, 6; character of Dryden's performance, ib.; history of the text, ib.

Carey's Greek terminations, 52.

Carson's rules for construction, 186; usual defects of elementary works, 186; merits of the author's rules, ib.

Catechetical instruction, advantages of, 283.

Chaplin's edition of Brand's memoirs, 283; see Brand.

Chatham, lord, character of, 244.

Chillingworth, noble resolution of, 494.

Church of Scotland, secularised character of, 368.

Church-membership, duties of, 329; see James.

Clarke, Dr. E. D., his hypothesis respecting mount Zion disproved, 298.

——'s, W. B., river Derwent, 377 et seq.; stir among the rivers, 377; extracts, 378.

Congregational union, see Union.

Conversion, difficulty of ascertaining the precise time of, 487.

Coptic church, state of the, 443.

Coral islands, description of, 36.

Crantz's history of Greenland, 118 et seq.; origin of the mission, 124, note; eulogy on the work, 137; merits of the present edition, ib.

Cunningham's, Allan, sir Marmaduke Maxwell, 259 et seq.; character and argument of the poem, 260; soliloquy of Halbert Comyne, 261; scene from the drama, 262; popular superstitions, 263; scene, 265; scene, and 'song of doom,' 267; character of author's talents, 277; hints on the advisableness of a regard to moral delicacy, 277; song, 'my heart is in Scotland,' 278; song, 'a weary bodie's blythe,' ib.

Cunningham's, J. W., Sermons, 225 et seq.; character of the author, 225; cast and merits of the volume, 226; author's views in the publication, 226; remarks on expository preaching, 228; address to the subjects of decay in religion, 229; apology for not preaching faith only, 230; evangelical preaching necessarily practical, 231; antinomianism the crime of every age, ib.; what may be attained to without Divine influence, 233; the Spirit's influence necessary to bring truth to bear on the conduct, ib.; what moral qualities can have no existence except by Divine influence, 235; the besetting sin, 236; exhortation to follow peace with men of all opinions and characters, 237.

Dealtry's sermon on the death of Owen, 564, et seq.; death-beds an uncertain test of character, 567; see Owen.

Desert of Sinai, course of the Israelites through, 41.

—— of Suez, description of, 290.

Deserts, effect of inhabiting, 201.

Dissenters, modern, history of, 541, et seq.

Domestic medicine, danger of tampering with, 90, 2.

Dort synod of, 114.

Douglas's hints on missions, 118 et seq.; remarks on the missionary spirit of the present day, 119; overwhelming magnitude of the sphere of exertion, ib.; efficiency of the means and resources within our power, 120; the ages of Christian purity, ages of Christian exertion, 121; cause of the decay of the missionary spirit in reformed churches, 122; society for the propagation of the Gospel, 123; importance of the missionary spirit to the well-being of churches, 123; revival of the spirit in England, ib.; London Missionary Society, ib.; first Moravian missionaries, 124, note; formation of the church missionary society, 124; importance of native assistance, 126; anticipated effects of general education and missionary colleges, ib.; claims of India, 127; its peculiar relation to other countries of the East, 128; ultra-Ganges nations, ib.; prevalence of Mahommedanism among the Malay tribes, 129; state of Christianity among the Indo-Chinese nations, ib.; state of Protestant missions, 130; discouraging view of the Chinese mission, ib.; importance of a Chinese college, 131; foundation of Anglo-Chinese College at Malacca, ib.; interesting character of the Malays, 132; general view of the state of Mahommedanism, ib.; the medical profession a passport in the East, 134; importance of Persia, ib.; hints respecting central Africa, ib.; a school of arts for negroes recommended, 135; effects of Christianity and colonization on the Polynesian and other tribes, 135; Russian Asia, 136; effects of the press on popery, ib.; state of things in Catholic countries, ib.; merits of Mr. Douglas's work, 137; Crantz's Greenland, ib.; danger of an all-absorbing attention to missionary enterprise, 138; objection founded on it obviated, 139; duty and glory of England, ib.

INDEX.

Dramatic poetry, remarks on, 259, 270, 275, 408, 421.

Druses, account of the, 50, 311.

Duelling, Mr. Jeffrey's speech in justification of, 176.

Durant's memoirs of an only son, 67 et seq.; extraordinary character of the subject of the memoir, 67; testimonies of Professor Mylne and Dr. Wardlaw, 68; success of home education in the present instance, 69; importance of early education, 70; influence of the mother, 71; infant obstinacy conquered, ib.; illustration of William's veracity, ib.; importance of a rigid adherence to plan of studies, 72; theme on polytheism, 73; argument in proof of the immateriality of the soul, 74; lines on midnight, 77; lines on the death of Melville's pupil, ib.; general remarks on the work, 79.

Ecclesiastes, Wardlaw on, 59 et seq.

Eclectic Review, original design of, 496.

——— Reviewer's remarks on labour, defence of, 471.

Education, remarks on, 69.

Egypt, present state of, a striking fulfilment of prophecy, 443; interest attaching to, 444; affinity of its religion, &c. to that of Ethiopia, 204; see Richardson and Waddington.

Eloquence, forensic, remarks on, 3, 247, 342; see Butler and Grattan.

——— Irish, 4.

——— pulpit, 80, 247, 256.

Emden's French Grammar, 379.

England, aspect of to an American, 469; foreign policy of, remarks on, 152, 188; influence of, 336; internal state of, 338 et seq., 468.

English history, see Aikin, Hack, and James.

——— mother's catechism, 379.

Ethiopia, travels in, see Waddington.

Europe, by an American, 464 et seq.; reflections on the progressive aggrandisement of Russia, 464; author's premature challenge of superiority for the federal republic, 465; internal aspect of France auspicious, ib.; Chateaubriand and Constant, 466; other political writers of France, ib.; errors of the Spanish Cortes, 467; affairs of Greece, ib.; author's remarks on the bombardment of Washington, 468; its misrepresentation exposed, ib.; on the recent prosecutions in England, ib.; aspect of England to an American, 469; grandeur of the Gothic architecture, 470; flippant remarks of the Writer on the slave-trade and bible societies, ib.

Europe, present state of, 335; see Pradt, abbé de.

Family worship, on the duty of, 491.

Fearn, Mr., extraordinary character of, 252.

Fortunes of Nigel, 163 et seq.; tact of the author in appropriating antiquarian stores, 164; his confession of want of skill in constructing a story, ib.; scene between Heriot and King James, 165; scene between Nigel, Heriot, and Buckingham, 167; sequel to the story, 168; partiality of the writer to the Stuarts, 169.

Fox, C. J., character of, 249.

France, remarks on the state of, 336, 465.

French literature, merits of, 253.

French political writers, account of, 466.

Geography, sacred, illustrations of, 41, see Burckhardt and Richardson.

Gothic architecture, 470.

Grattan's speeches, 1 et seq.; memoir of Mr. Grattan, 1; amiableness of his private character, 2; character of his eloquence, 3; Irish eloquence 4; origin of its peculiarity, 5; Burke and Sheridan not Irish in their character, ib.; results of Mr. Grattan's oratorical exertions, 6; object of his party, ib.; origin of the legislative dispute between England and Ireland, 7; speech of Mr. Grattan on moving that the king and the lords and commons of Ireland are the only power competent to make laws for Ireland, 7—11; Dungannon resolutions, 11; Mr. Grattan's congratulatory address to Ireland as free, ib.; his attack on Mr. Flood, 13; his exertions on behalf of the catholics, ib.; his parliamentary career in the English house, 14; speech on going to war with the French government, 15; dying sentiments, 18; estimate of, 251.

INDEX.

Greeks, address in the cause of, 188; see Hughes.

Greenland, history of mission to, 118; see Crantz.

Hack's English stories, 372 et seq.; plan and merits of the work as a history of England, 372; duty of British parents, ib.; influence of the institutions of chivalry, 373; notice of Wirliff, 374; fatal ecclesiastical policy of Henry IV. 375; suggestions as to the sequel of the histories, 376.

Hall, Robert, eloquence of, 256.

Hamilton's codex criticus, 317 et seq.; a standard text of the Hebrew Scriptures a desideratum, 317; evils of the present state of the text in reference to Oriental translation, ib.; duty of circulating a pure text, 318; objection answered as to consequences, 319; description of the codex, ib.; on the critical principles adopted by King James's translators, 320; variations in the text, 321; the Basil edition of the Hebrew text, and the bishop's bible, the basis of the common version, 322; merits of the publication, 324.

Hanbury's visit to Ethiopia, 193; see Waddington.

Harris's grounds of hope for the salvation of infants, 216 et seq.; religious confidence in God distinguished from an intellectual acquiescence in the Divine character, 217; views held respecting the salvation of infants by calvinists and anti-calvinists, 218; children subject to penal sufferings, 219; in what sense all are made alive in Christ, ib.; the resurrection viewed in its bearing on original sin, 220; doctrine of election has no aspect unfavourable to infants, ib.; case of Esau and Jacob considered, 221; election has respect to this life, ib.; sovereignty of God not a ground for the doctrine of infant preterition, 222; no conceivable object of the Divine displeasure but sin, ib.; aspect of the Christian dispensation on children, ib.; children the objects of angelic care, 223; children regarded by our Lord with complacency, 224; children viewed as subjects of God's moral government, ib.; character of author's essay, 225; epitaph on four infants by Robinson, ib.

Haynes on soils and composts, 380; gardening becoming a science, ib.

Hebrew scriptures, standard text of, a desideratum, 317.

Helvetic confederacy, restoration of, 280; see Planta.

Hope's letter to Abercromby, 182, et seq.; contrast of the conduct of Mr. Abercromby and the spirit discovered by the Writer, 183; contemptible character of the letter as a composition, ib.; appeal to Mr. A. on his countenancing duelling, 184.

Horne's supplementary pages to an Introduction, &c. 557 et seq.; account of the Libertini, 557; contents of the addenda, 558; state of the controversy respecting 1 John v. 7, 559; origin of the interpolation, ib.; symbolic dictionary, ib.; Calvin's remark on the parable of the elder brother, 560.

Howison's sketches of upper Canada, 352 et seq.; attractions of Canada to a person of sensibility, questioned, 352; description of the climate, 353; comparative advantages of the western and eastern districts, 355; beautiful and luxuriant aspect of Long Point, 356; perfume of snakes, ib.; Canadian ladies, 357; financial recommendations, ib.; upper Canada not an eligible country for capitalists, 358; want of servants and schools, ib.; degraded moral aspect of the population, 359; demoralizing effects of the war, ib.; author's want of discrimination, 366; charge against the Methodists, ib.; counter-statement, 361; specimen of yankee dialogue, ib.; Canadian doctor, 362.

Hughes's, Jos., sermon on the death of Owen, 564 et seq.; subject of the sermon, why chosen, 564; on a criminal attachment to life, 565; heroic attachment of the Christian philanthropist to life, 566; see Owen.

——— Mary, life of Penn, 423.

——— T. S., address in the cause of the Greeks, 188; impolitic and cruel conduct of English authorities, ib.; policy with regard to Russia, ib.

Hunt's, Sir A. de Vere, Julian the apostate, 408 et seq.; merits of the poem, 408; Scott always dramatic, never heroic, ib.; soliloquy of Julian at Eleusis, 409; scene, Julian and Maximus, 409; scene, Julian and Constantia, 412; song, 414; soliloquy of Maximus, 416; dawn, 417; description of Julian's feats in battle, ib.; death of Julian, 419; objection to his character, 420; objections to a departure from the unities, 421; moral purity of the poem, 422.

Immateriality of the soul, proof of, 74.
Infant salvation, remarks on, 218 et seq.
Infanticide, singular law of, 37.
Ireland, Mr. Grattan's exertions on behalf of, 6; see Grattan.
Irving's farewell discourse, 367 et seq.; character of the production, 367; exhortation to young ministers to trust in God, 368; secularised character of the church of Scotland, ib.; satisfaction of pastoral intercourse with the poor, 369; contrast of the Scottish and the English establishments, 370; success of Dr. Chalmers's system at Glasgow, ib.; the labours of Dr. C. no argument for the establishment, 371.
Ismaylys, account of the, 47.
Italy, a poem, 461 et seq.; the great St. Bernard, 461; Arqua, 463.
James's, I. A., church-members guide, 324 et seq.; a work of the kind wanted, 324; nature of the duty of joining a church, 325; privileges of church-membership, 326; nothing which is not a previous duty to be made a condition of communion, ib.; positive rights of church members, 327; no moral claim originated by joining a church, ib.; true and proper design of christian fellowship, 328; duties of church-members, 329; duty of visiting the sick, ib.; duty of forbearance, ib.; scriptural direction in case of offence, 330; vindictive spirit shewn in demanding unreasonable concession, ib.; duties of deacons, 331; antinomian doctrine a cause of schisms, ib; duties of churches towards each other, 332; when advice is beneficial, 333; means of effecting a consolidation of the general body, ib.; proper mode of inculcating dissenting principles, 334; defective nature of present associations among dissenters, ib.
James's, Wm., naval history of Great Britain, 512 et seq.; uncertainties attaching to history, 512; blunders of official details, 513; incorrectness of naval details occasioned by the introduction of the carronade, ib.; merit of the present historian, 514; engagement between the Thames and the Uranie, ib.; intrepid conduct of Captain Hood and the crew of the Juno, 515; Lord Howe's victory, 517; gallant resolution of Lord Cornwallis, ib.; affair of the Diamond, Capt. Sir S. Smith, 518; successful trial of the carronades by Capt. Trollope, 519; reflections on the Nore mutiny, 520; admirable policy of Lord Vincent, 521; wreck of the Tribune, ib.; recovery of the Hermione by the Surprise, Capt. Hamilton, 522; most daring achievements of the war, 523; merit of the tables, ib.
James I., character of, 98, 102, 117, 165; see Aikin and Fortunes of Nigel.
Jeffrey, Mr., speech of, in justification of Mr. Stuart, 176.
Jerusalem, appearance of, 294; topography of examined, 295 et seq; distribution of bibles at, 309; see Richardson.
Jordan, course of the, 41; efficacy of baptism in the, 308.
Jowett's Christian researches, 289 et seq.; Mr. Connor's statement of the disgraceful animosities of the Jerusalem Christians, 307; number of pilgrims, 308; distribution of Bibles at Jerusalem, 308; account of the Druses, 311; author's remarks on the depressed state of the Coptic Christians, 444; liberality of the Alexandrian Greek priests, ib.; importance of Cairo as a missionary station, 445; slave-market at Cairo, 450; illustration of scripture supplied by the tombs of the kings, 458; contents and merit of the work, 466.
Judea, description of, 293, 309.
Julian the apostate, a poem, 408; see Hunt, Sir A. de Vere.

Knill's memoir of Venning, 532 et seq.; efficacy of early religious impressions, 533; account of Mr. V.'s conversion, ib.; his philanthropic zeal as a member of the prison society, ib.; remarkable case of reform in a juvenile offender, 534; return of Mr. V. to Russia, ib.; reasons which detained him there, 535; invited by prince Galitzin to Moscow, ib.; formation of the Russian prison society, ib.; formation of the auxiliary society at Cronstadt, 536; visit of Mr. V. to the naval hospital, 537; Mr. V. wrecked in his voyage to Copenhagen, ib.; his illness and death, 538; in-

INDEX.

[illegible] on his monument, ib.; sketch of his character, 539.
Kotzebue's voyage of discovery, 19 et seq.; contents of the work, 19; hostile demonstrations of the inhabitants of Easter Island, 20; atrocious outrage committed there by an American captain, ib.; discovery of Rurick's chain and other coral islands, 21; modest manners of the islanders, 22; dreary aspect of St. Lawrence's islands, ib.; description of the inhabitants, 23; sacrifice of a dog, ib.; subterranean dwellings on Saritscheff island, 24; discovery of Kotzebue Sound, 25; prospect from Chamisso island, ib.; seal feast, 26; description of the natives, ib.; description of the Tschukutskoi, 27; Asiatic origin of the Esquimaux, 28; St. Alexander's day at Oonalashka, ib.; interview with the king of the Sandwich islands, 29; Tamaahmaah's religious sentiments, 30; author's enmity against missionaries, ib.; his apology for the idolatry and human sacrifices practised at Owhyhee, 31; character of the Owhyheans, 32; enlightened policy of the king, ib.; prospects of the islands at his demise, ib.; importance of the station as a sphere of missionary labours, 33; discovery of New Year's island, ib.; author's reflections on landing at one of the coral islands, 34; Radack chain, ib.; natural history of the coral insect, 35; formation of the coral islands, 36; productions and inhabitants of the Radack islands, 37; singular law of infanticide, ib.; character of Kadu, 38; return to Europe, ib.

Labour, pernicious effect of confounding with other commodities, 472.
Laing's Greek and English lexicon, 184-5.
Leyden's Malay annals, 285; real character of the Malays, ib.; nature and style of Malay history, ib.
Libertini, account of the, 557.
Liturgy, on the private use of, 490.
Londonderry, marquis of, his diplomatic incompetency, 153; his singular parliamentary oratory, 248.
Lord's supper, letter of K. White on delay in observing, 214; not the only object of church fellowship, 326.

Mahommed Ali Pasha, character of, 200, 449.
Malay annals, Leyden's, 528.
Malay tribes, prevalence of Mahommedanism among, 129; languages spoken by, 132; works relating to, ib.; note.
Mamelouks, history of the, 206.
Manichean conspiracy, 258.
Mexican city, ruins of, 524 et seq.
Mexican revolution, history of, 83 et seq.; see Robinson.
Milman's Belshazzar, 553 et seq.; defects of the poem, 553; hymn, 'God of the thunder,' 554; chorus of priests, 555.
Milne's retrospect of the Protestant mission to China, 118 et seq.; prevalence of Mahommedanism among the Malay tribes, 129; state of Christianity among the Indo-Chinese nations, ib.; state of Protestant missions, 130; formation of Anglo-Chinese college, 131; extensive sphere of the institution, 132; see Douglas's hints.
Mina, Don Xavier, memoir of, 85 et seq.
Missionary society, baptist, lead taken by the, 123; origin of, 483.
——— church, remarks on the formation of, 124; origin of, 483.
——— London, its early efforts ill-advised, 123; improved management of, 124; brilliant successes in the South Sea islands, 135; remarks on the constitution of, 485; viewed with jealousy at first by the regular Dissenters, 546; its congregational character, 548.
——— societies, remarks on, 123, 138, 484, 547; see Douglas, Milne, Morison, and Scott.
Missions, hints on, 118 et seq.; see Douglas.
Moffat's consolation to parents, 216; see Harris.
Moral science, cause of the imperfection of, 511.
Morison on congregational union, 540 et seq.; abortive character of former schemes, 540; object of the writer, ib.; congregational principles tend to union, ib.; explanation of the circumstances which have led to the present disunited aspect of the body, 541; extinction of Presbyterianism in England, 542; presidency of the London boards, ib.; origin of the decline of London influence, 543; effects of Whitfield's preaching on dissent, 544; system of private chapels, ib.; modern dissenters a mixed race, ib.; substantial uniformity of congregationalists, 545; importance of a collective appellation, ib.; existing means of consolidation and union, 546; London missionary society not promoted by the regular dissenters, ib.; altered spirit of the times, 547; Rowland Hill, ib.; author's wish respecting

INDEX.

a congregational mission, ib.; another society not desirable, 548; influence and importance of academies, ib.; the spirit of party deprecated, ib.; great parties nobler than little ones, 549; civil rights of dissenters, how best protected, ib.; patronage of all kinds out of the province of a representative committee, 550; no church absolutely independent, 551; means of checking strife and division in churches, 552.

Mutiny at the Nore, causes of, 520.

Myers's influence of Protestant missionary establishments, 118.

Napoleon, and other poems, 155; see Barton.

——— in exile, 140 et seq.; see O'Meara and Bonaparte.

Naval history of Great Britain, 512; see James.

Nile, course of the, 200.

Nubia, climate of, 459; travels in, see Richardson and Waddington.

Nubians, physiological character of, 459.

Observations on the Spitalfields' act, 471, et seq.; Eclectic Reviewer charged with confounding value with cost of production, 471; writer's mistake exposed, ib.; pernicious effect of ranking labour with other commodities, 472; legislative interference, when called for, 473.

O'Meara's Napoleon in exile, 140 et seq.; qualifications and predicament of the writer, 140; antipathy of Napoleon to Sir Hudson Lowe, 142; description of Napoleon's room, ib.; his eulogy on Sir John Moore, 143; death of Villeneuve, ib.; contemptuous estimate of the king of Prussia and the emigrant noblesse, 144; Soult, Savary, Fouché, 145; Napoleon's introduction to Josephine, ib.; character of Madame Mère and Josephine, ib.; character of Carnot, 146; Barras, ib.; Blucher, ib.; comparative merits of European soldiers, 147; Wellington, ib.; Napoleon's estimate of, 148; Talleyrand, Moreau, Lasnes, ib.; character of Massena, ib.; of Pichegru, 149; of the Emperor Alexander, ib.; of Robespierre, ib.; Barrère, Billaud de Varennes, Sieyes, 150; admirable conduct of Larrey, surgeon-general to the army, 151; la morgue aristocratique, ib.; remarks on the foreign policy pursued by the English cabinet, 152; incompetent conduct of Lord Castlereagh, 153; Sir Hudson Lowe, 154.

Orators, great English, 5, 239 et seq.

Owen, rev. John, sermons on the death of, 564 et seq.; his admirable qualifications for the office of secretary to the Bible society, 569; purity of his motives, ib.; character as a preacher and writer, 570; his unshaken attachment to the cause, ib.; on gratuitous services, 571.

Paper, history of, 388.

Parliamentary eloquence, see Eloquence.

Penn's, William, admirable letter to his wife, 423; his crude theology, 425; see quaker orthodoxy.

Penrose's inquiry into the nature of motives, 509 et seq.; error of disconnecting religion and morals, 509; design of the work, 510; connection of benevolence with love to God, ib.; deficiency in moral philosophy pointed out by Lord Bacon, 511; cause of the imperfection of moral science, ib.

Pestalozzi, merit of, 281.

Physiognomical character of the Esquimaux, 26, 27; of the Ethiopic family, 447, 459; of the Mexican Indians, 532.

Pitt, William, character of, 249.

Planta's restoration of the Helvetic confederacy, 280 et seq.; merits of Author's former work, 280; affected depreciation of Napoleon in the present work, ib.; beneficial results of his 'mediation,' 281; exertions of Pestalozzi and Fellenberg, ib.

Plans for the government of boys, 185.

Polytheism, essay on, 73.

Pradt's, abbé de, Europe and America, 335 et seq.; qualifications of the abbé as a writer, 335; oracular conclusions, ib.; policy of the holy alliance, ib.; elements of dissolution in the northern federation, 336; influence of England, ib.; alleged nullity of France, ib.; incorrectness of the abbé's reasoning, 337; universal feeling in favour of constitutional governments, ib.; inevitable progress of liberal principles, 338; author's view of the state and policy of England, ib.; alteration in the spirit of the English government, 339; impolicy of calling in the military, 340; circumstances of the death of Napoleon, ib.; cause of the defeat of Vandamme in the battle of Culm, 341; character of Napoleon, ib.; who should draw his portrait, 342; ridiculous preference of French oratory, ib.

Preaching, remarks on, 80, 228, 247, 256, 499.

——— itinerant, 497.

——— quaker notions respecting, 436.

Press, the, a chief means of counteracting popery, 136; growing abuse of, 170 et seq.; see Stuart; exultation of Fox, the martyrologist, on the power of, 400.

Printing, effects of the art of, 401.

Prison society, formation of, at St. Petersburg, &c. 535; see Knill.

Pyramid, origin and design of the, 203, 455.

Pyramids of Egypt, description of, 451, et seq.

——— Nubia, 203, et seq. 459.

Quaker orthodoxy, remarks on, 423 et seq.; state of public opinion relative to, 423; existing documents, character of, 424; the Quakers not Socinians, ib.; crude nature of Penn's theology, 425; the consistent Quaker a devout man, 426; remarks of William Allen on the carnal and spiritual states, ib.; zeal of Friends in the Bible Society a proof of their regard for the rule of faith, 428; high churchmen shewn to have adopted the quaker error, ib. note; remarks on the controversy between Barclay and Bennet, 429; W. Allen's view of the Atonement, ib.; reserve and singular language of Quakers on this point, 430; exceptionable statements of orthodox writers a source of prejudice, 431; Christmas carol by B. Barton, 432; indications of improved spirit in the society of Friends, ib.; prevalence of unfavourable opinions accounted for, 433; quaker objections to evangelical phraseology, of a Socinian complexion, ib.; quaker deists, ib.; character of the recent secessions from the society, 434; deficiency of the quaker provision for religious instruction, 435; L. Murray's tract on reading the Scriptures, ib.; quaker neglect of preaching a symbolizing with popery, 436; moral wants of the people effectively reached only by a standing ministry, 437; morbid dread of controversy, ib.; defensive measures taken by the society against Socinian zealots, 438; danger of religious speculations, 439; how best provided against, ib.; claim of Bernard Barton to the support of the society, 440; Hooker's definition of the church, 441; appeal to the quakers as a body on the subject of Christian union, 442.

Raffles's lectures on practical religion, 79 et seq.; importance of simplicity in pulpit eloquence, 80; useful character and contents of the work, ib.; extract from the sermon on dress, 81; the Christian, God's property, ib.

Rees's journal, 363 et seq.; qualifications of the author, 363; St. David's day on the Tigris, ib; illustration of a passage in Tobit, 365; locusts used as food, 366; author's reflections on sailing up the Euphrates, ib.; recollections at Bagdad, ib.; history of the author, 367.

Revolutionists, French, portraits of the 145, et seq.

Richardson's travels, 289 et seq.; privilege enjoyed by the author as a physician, 289; description of journeying in the desert, 290; discovery of a spring, 291; night scene in the desert, ib.; vegetation in the desert, ib.; appearance of el Arisch, 292; aspect of the country on entering Syria, ib.; Abraham a Bedoween, ib.; Gaza, ib.; ruinous state of Askelon, ib.; Azotus, 293; description of the hill country of Judea, ib.; appearance of Jerusalem, 294; value of author's topographical notices, 295; contending opinions respecting mount Zion, ib.; hypothesis of Dr. Clarke, 296; its untenableness 297; gross inaccuracy of Dr. Clarke's plan, 298; mosque of David, ib.; Christian burying-ground on mount Zion, 299; description of Zion, ib.; hill of evil council, 300; the tyropæan, where? 301; pool of Siloam, 302; mountains round about Jerusalem, ib.; valleys of Hinnom and Rephaim, 303; mosque of Omar, ib.; grotto of the Lord Jesus, ib.; original holy sepulchre, 304; subterranean colonnade, 305; holy wars between the Greeks and the Romans in the chapel of the sepulchre, 306; pernicious consequences of Christian idolatry, ib.; difficulty of abolishing the lucrative mummeries of the holy places, 307; number and character of pilgrims to Jerusalem, 308; supposed efficacy of baptism in the Jordan, ib.; duty of Protestants in reference to the system of Romish imposture, ib.; distribution of bibles at Jerusalem, 309; description of Samaria, ib.; wretched state of Bethsan, ib.; college of Jews at Tiberias, 310; interview with Lady Hester Stanhope, ib.; the emir Bashir, ib.; account of the Druses, 311; Capernaum and Chorazin, 312; description of Damascus, 313; origin of the hostility of the Turks to Christianity, ib.; intellectual degradation of the Turks, 314; debt of Christians to the Moslem nations, ib.; Mahommedanism superior to popery, ib.; description of Balbec, 315; striking fulfilment of prophecy in the present state of Egypt, 443; state of the Coptic church, ib.; peculiar interest attaching to Egypt, 444; importance of Cairo as a station, 445; character of the motley population, ib.; the Copts a mixed race, 446; effects of the Persian, Greek, and Roman conquests on the native character, ib.; physical traces of the ancient race to be sought for in the Ethiopic tribes, 447; physiognomy of the Memnon, ib.; Alexandria the door to Egyptian discovery, 448; present aspect of Alexandria, ib.; Diocletian's pillar—the Pharos, 449; Old Cairo, ib.; interview with Mahommed Ali, ib.; Turkish justice, 450; policy of the Pasha, ib.; slave market, ib.; disappointment of the author at first sight of the pyramids, 451; their sepulchral character, ib.; hieroglyphics not found on their coating, 452; channel under the pyramid of Cheops, ib.; probable date and exotic character of the pyramids, 453; their peculiar architecture, ib.; pyramids of Asawee and Dahschour, 454; description of the brick pyramid, ib.; Memphis, 455; pyramids of Abousir, ib.; supposed design &c. of the pyramid, ib.; description of the Sphinx, 456; hieroglyphics used in the second century, 457; zodiac of Dandera, ib.; bas-reliefs at Biban el Melook, ib.; suggestion as to its original entrance, 458; biblical illustrations, ib.; Syene, ib.; Roman pottery ib.; physiological character of the Nubians, 459; traces of a third race, ib.; pyramidal mounds near Absambul, ib.; Nubian climate, ib.; vocal Memnon, 460; Goshen, ib.; merits of the author as a traveller, ib.

Rio's, capt. del, description of the ruins of an ancient city, 523 et seq.; captivating nature of the discovery, 523; description of the site of the buildings, 524; advantages of the situation, 525; description of the edifices, ib.; ancient weapons, 528; account of the drawings, ib.; peculiar physiognomy of the figures, 529; Dr. Cabrera's hypothesis respecting the Americans, ib.; forthcoming history of heaven and earth, 530; the Americans not præ Adamates, 531; notices of other ruins, ib.; imitative instinct displayed by tribes whose civilization has been stationary, ib.; consequent value of recent specimens as historical documents, 532; Indian characteristics, ib.

Robespierre, character of, 149.

Robinson's memoirs of the Mexican revolution, 83 et seq.; adventures of the author, 83; biographical account of Mina, 85; insurrections under Hidalgo and Morelos, 86; fate of Col. Perry, 87; description of Don Christoval Naba, the patriot leader, ib.; disastrous issue of the attempts of Mina, 88; is taken prisoner, 89; death and character, ib.; extirpation of the patriot bands, 90; feasibility of a communication between the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans, ib.

Ruddiman's rudiments, recommendation of new edition of, 186.

Russia, formidable position of, 464; policy pursued by, 188, 335.

Sandwich islands, voyage to, 29.

Scott's sir W., Halidon hill, 259; a poet degraded by writing for the stage, 270; plan of the poem, 271; the Swinton, ib.; death of Swinton, 273; Scott — Shakspeare — Byron, 275.

——— poetry, remarks on the character of, 408.

——— John, life of Scott, 481 et seq.; value and usefulness of such memorials, 481; points of resemblance between the character of Mr. Scott and that of Mr. A. Fuller, 482; Dr. Carey's first religious impressions ascribed to Mr. Scott, 483; origin of the Baptist mission, ib.; formation of the church-missionary society owing to Mr. S., ib.; missionary societies do not admit of comprehension, 484; anecdote of Mr. S. on being refused ordination, 485; light in which his entering the church afterwards appeared to himself, 486; remarks on subscription, ib.; exemplary professional conduct of Mr. S, 487; difficulty of discriminating between the states of conversion and unconversion in the mental history, ib.; effect of improved knowledge sometimes mistaken for conversion, 488; origin of Mr. S.'s first religious convictions, 489; commencement of his practice of family worship, 490; domestic use of the Liturgy, how far advisable, ib. note; singular efficacy of his domestic instruction, 491; family worship older than public worship, ib.; extract from Howe on the duty of family worship, 492; upright determination of Mr. S. in refusing to renew his subscription to the articles, 493; his own explanation of his views, ib.; noble resolution of Chillingworth, 494; proposed explanation of Mr. S.'s subsequent subscription, ib.; his confidence in providence, ib.; genuine character of the faith discovered in such sacrifices to principle, 495; connexion between literature and religion, 496; original design of the Eclectic Review, ib.; importance of itinerant preaching, 497; circumstances attending Mr. S.'s removal to London, ib.; prevalence of antinomian notions, ib.; antinomianism the residuum of an evangelical creed, 498; Mr. S. charged with arminianism, ib.; his firm consistency, 499; superficial preaching most popular, ib.; formation of the Lock asylum, ib.; origin of his undertaking a family commentary, 500; his feelings on its completion, 501; his resignation under losses and bereavement, 502; letter from Mr. S., ib.; danger of ministers' engaging in pecuniary speculations, ib.; price set on Mr. S.'s labours at the Lock hospital, 503; preferment conferred upon him by the church, 504; remarks on the test act and toleration, state of the church, ib.; on the conventicle act, 505; narrow and discouraging circumstances of Mr. S., ib.; on a minister's running in debt, 505; on providing for children, 506; embarrassments of Mr. S., ib.; his reflections on being extricated from them, ib.; latter years and death, 507; his opinion of Dissenters, 508; merits as a commentator and preacher, ib.; his unpopularity, 509; competent and judicious character of the memoir, ib.

Sentinel newspaper, its identity with the Beacon, 173.

Shakspeare, remarks on, 275, 395, 408.

Shelley, stanzas on the death of by Barton, 476, and Brooke, 478.

Sheridan, character of as an orator, 5, 251.

Sinai, mount, account of the convent of, 55.

Smith's abridgement of the prophecies, 282; design and contents, ib.; errors and corrections, ib.; recommendation of Dr. Allix's work, 283.

Snakes, perfume of, 356.

Southey's remains of H. K. White, vol. 3, 209 et seq.; occasion of the publication, 209; sonnet to December, 210; winter song, 211; to the morning star, ib.; author's renunciation of fame as an object, 213; hymn, ib.; difficulty of composing hymns, 214; letter on delay in approaching the Lord's table, ib.; remarks on the character of H. K. White, 215; sonnet to his memory by C. H. Townsend, 216.

Spanish cortes, errors of, 467.

Spitalfields' act, observations on the, 471 et seq.

Stanhope, lady Hester, interview with, 310.

Stuart, James, trial of, 170 et seq.; extraordinary interest excited by it, 170; circumstances connected with the death of Sir A. Boswell; ib.; liberty of the press, its importance an aggravation of the abuse of it, 171; its self-redeeming power, ib.; virulence of party spirit in Scotland arising from the influence of state patronage, ib.; system of burgh-government, 172; origination of the system of private slander, ib.; infamous character of Blackwood's magazine and of the Beacon, ib.; the Beacon patronised by the officers of the crown, 173; sentinel newspaper, ib.; a disposition to listen to slander general, ib.; dreadful tendency of the system, 174; attack on Mr. Stuart in the Sentinel, ib.; his conduct after the duel, 175; eloquent speech of Mr. Jeffrey in defence of Mr. Stuart, 176; sophistical argument of Dr. Johnson in vindication of duelling, 177; the practice indefensible on the ground of self-defence, 178; no courage shewn by the Duellist, ib.; duelling not the preventive of assassination, 179; duelling not necessary to preserve the high tone of society, ib.; the Duellist a murderer, 180; extract from Pascal on the wickedness of the practice, 181.

Subscription to articles, remarks on, 486, 494.

INDEX.

Syria, Burckhardt's travels in, 39 et seq.; Richardson's travels in, 289 et seq.

Test act, remarks of Mr. Scott on, 504.
Thuanus, Walker's life of, 380.
Tiberias, description of, 54, 310.
Townley's illustrations of biblical literature, 385 et seq.; obligations of Christians to biblical translators, 385; merits of the work, 386; ancient alphabets, ib.; history of paper, ib.; memoirs of C. G. Woide, 388; bibliomancy, 389; rarity of the scriptures prior to the invention of printing, ib.; codices rescripti discovered at Milan, 390; wooden churches in England, ib.; benefit to literature arising from monastic foundations, 391; account of the writing monks, 392; calligraphy, 393; specimens of ancient canons, ib.; origin of the mysteries, 394; the burlesque indispensable to the amusement of the illiterate, 395; specimen of the religious dramas, ib.; De Dieu's Syriac version of the apocalypse, 396; Dr. Henderson's history of Danish Versions, ib.; Danish manuscript version of the Old Testament, 397; influence of Wicliff, ib.; an adequate life of the reformer still a desideratum, 398; memoir of J. H. Wesselus, 399; exultation of Fox the martyrologist on contemplating the power of the press, 400; reflections on the discovery of printing, 401; congregation of the index, 402; licencers of the press in England, ib.; account of the first printed bibles, 403; Erasmus on the unrestricted circulation of the bible, 404; stanzas by Sir D. Lindesay, 405; audacious assertion of the council of Trent, 406; church of Rome the depositary only of a translation, ib.; account of editions published at Rome, 407; Caustein bible institution, ib.
Triple aim, 474; character of the work, ib.; on Christian decision, ib.
Turks, character of the, 313 et seq.
Turkish justice, 348, 450.

Union, congregational, means of promoting, 333, 546; see James and Morison.
Unities, dramatic, remarks on, 421.
Venning, W., Knill's memoir of, 532; see Knill.

Waddington and Hanbury's visit to some parts of Ethiopia, 193 et seq.; additional information furnished by the authors, 193; means resorted to at Ferket to procure conveyance, 194; character of Burckhardt, 195; antiquities in the island of Argo, 196; scene on the Nile, 197; arrival at Old Dongola, 198; picturesque description of scenery and costume, 199; tortuous course of the Nile, 200; short commons, ib.; object of Mahommed Ali's expedition, ib.; moral effect of inhabiting the desert, 201; character of Ismael Pasha, ib.; daring resistance of the Sheygyà, ib.; desolating character of the warfare, 202; Christian renegades, ib.; contrast of the tranquillity of nature and the traces of war, ib.; remains at Djebel el Berkel, 203; pyramids of el Berkel, ib.; pyramids of el Bellál, 204; coincidence between the religion &c. of the Ethiopians and Egyptians, ib.; author's opinion in favour of the prior antiquity of Ethiopian remains, and Ethiopic origin of the pyramids, ib.; identity of el Berkel and Napáta, 205; tombs at Dabdi, 206; Christian remains at Dongola, ib.; history of the Mamelouks, ib.; antiquities at Sasef, 208; temple of Sóleb, ib.; merits of the work, ib.
Walker's life of Thuanus, 380.
War, remarks on, 155.
Wardlaw's lectures on Ecclesiastes, 59 et seq.; superiority of the moral lessons of sacred, to those of classic writers, 59; merits of the author as an expositor, 60; Solomon's description of the miser, 61; the discussion of particulars foreign from the design of an expositor, 62; exposition of "two are better than one," &c., 63; exposition of "no end of all the people," &c., ib.; vanity of life in itself, 64; exposition of "be not righteous over-much," 65; exposition of "the lips of a fool," &c., 66; the dying man, 67.
Wellington, duke of, Napoleon's estimate of the, 147.
Wesselus, memoir of, 399.
White, H. K., remains of, Vol. 3., 209; see Southey.
Wiclif, historical notice of, 374; estimate of his influence on society, 397; an adequate life of, a desideratum, 398.
Woide, memoir of, 388.
Wonders of the vegetable kingdom, 560 et seq.; merit and contents of the work, 560; pleasures of the garden, 561; description of forest trees, 562.

MVSEVM BRITAN NICVM